Big Idea/Enduring Understanding	Guiding Questions
Read and write fluently and independently to acquire and share information to develop and broaden an understanding of the world.	Why would the dramatic adaptation of a text be different or similar to the original text? How does writing about personal connections help readers understand text?

The resources included here provide teaching examples and/or meaningful learning experiences to address the District Curriculum. In order to address the TEKS to the proper depth and complexity, teachers are encouraged to use resources to the degree that they are congruent with the TEKS and research-based best practices. Teaching using only the suggested resources does not guarantee student mastery of all standards. Teachers must use professional judgment to select among these and/or other resources to teach the district curriculum.

Reading/Comprehension Skills. Students use a flexible range of metacognitive reading skills in both assigned and independent reading to understand an author’s message. Students will continue to apply earlier standards with greater depth in increasingly more complex texts as they become self-directed, critical readers. The student is expected to:

- (A) establish purposes for reading selected texts based upon own or others’ desired outcome to enhance comprehension;
- (B) ask literal, interpretive, evaluative, and universal questions of text;
- (C) monitor and adjust comprehension (e.g., using background knowledge, creating sensory images, rereading a portion aloud, generating questions);
- (D) make inferences about text and use textual evidence to support understanding;
- (E) summarize and paraphrase texts in ways that maintain meaning and logical order within a text and across texts; and
- (F) make connections (e.g., thematic links, author analysis) between and across multiple texts of various genres and provide textual evidence.
